

THE 30-DAY INITIATION

One rite a day. Eight archetypes. Five gates. One seal.

HOSTED BY MADAME SULPHUR, AN AI CHARACTER

Sit down, darling.

You picked this up because some part of you wants to know which one you are. Not your star sign or a personality type with four letters. Something older. The archetype you keep coming back to, whether you meant to or not.

For thirty days I'll give you one rite a day. Each takes about ten minutes. Some will be easy and some you'll put off until the evening. Do them anyway. Skipping is information too.

There are five gates. At the Threshold you watch. In the Mirror you look back at yourself. In the Crucible you transform what you found. With the Signal you speak. And at the Seal you make a promise.

I already know how this ends. You don't yet. That's the fun of it.

— Madame Sulphur

HOW TO USE THIS WORKBOOK

1. One page a day. Read the rule, do the rite, fill in the lines. About ten minutes.
2. Tick the tracker. It's on page 4. Cut it out, stick it on the fridge and don't break the chain.
3. Tasks marked In the Codex are optional. They send you into the archive at cultcodex.me. Most of them are free.
4. Missed a day? Do it tomorrow. Don't do two at once. The rites need a night in between.

Madame Sulphur is an AI character. This workbook is for reflection and fun. It is not therapy, medical advice or a prediction of the future. If you're struggling, please talk to someone you trust or a local support service. CultCodex is an independent fan archive, not an official Cult of Psyche publication.

Five gates

GATE I • DAYS 1-7 • ATTENTION

The Threshold

Before anything changes, darling, you have to see what's already there. This week you only watch. The Familiar and the Exile are your guides. They're the ones who notice everything because nobody is watching them.

GATE II • DAYS 8-14 • SELF-KNOWLEDGE

The Mirror

Now we turn the watching around. This week belongs to the Mirror Walker and the Oracle. You'll ask the questions you usually avoid and look for the patterns you keep repeating. It will be uncomfortable. That's how you know it's working.

GATE III • DAYS 15-21 • TRANSFORMATION

The Crucible

Everything you gathered is material, and this week you heat it. The Alchemist turns the mess into meaning, and the Trickster checks whether that meaning can take a joke. Break something small. See what you learn.

GATE IV • DAYS 22-28 • VOICE

The Signal

A signal nobody receives is only noise, darling. This week you say things out loud: predictions, letters, new words. The Prophet speaks first and the Architect builds something that lasts. You'll do both.

GATE V • DAYS 29-30 • RETURN

The Seal

You go back to the threshold as someone slightly different. Two days, one look back, one promise.

Don't break the chain

Put a mark in each box when the rite is done. Any mark is fine, darling: a tick, a cross, a small drawing of a cat.

✦ GATE I • THE THRESHOLD

01	02	03	04	05	06	07
The Threshold	The Witness	The Record	The Running Joke	The Margin	The Familiar's Hour	Gate I Review

● GATE II • THE MIRROR

08	09	10	11	12	13	14
The Mirror	The Price of the Gift	The Oracle's Question	The Pattern	The Old Story	The Masks	Gate II Review

⬢ GATE III • THE CRUCIBLE

15	16	17	18	19	20	21
The Crucible	The Transmutation	The Trickster's Test	The Small Disruption	The Symbol	The Draw	Gate III Review

⊙ GATE IV • THE SIGNAL

22	23	24	25	26	27	28
The Prophecy	The Architect's Frame	The Unsent Letter	The Transmission	The Lexicon	The Eras	Gate IV Review

● GATE V • THE SEAL

29	30
The Return	The Seal

Initiate: _____ Began: _____

GATE I • DAYS 1-7

THE THRESHOLD

ATTENTION

Before anything changes, darling, you have to see what's already there. This week you only watch. The Familiar and the Exile are your guides. They're the ones who notice everything because nobody is watching them.

The Threshold

Begin by noticing that you've begun.

“Most people never find out which one they are. You will before lunch.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Take the archetype quiz. Then write one honest sentence about why you picked up this workbook, and one sentence about what you'd be a little embarrassed to admit you want from it.

IN THE CODEX Take the free archetype quiz and write your result below. cultcodex.me/archetype-quiz

My archetype, according to the quiz:

Why I picked this up:

What I'd be embarrassed to admit I want:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

Watch before you speak.

THE RITE Spend ten minutes somewhere public, or at a window. Write down five things people do without knowing they're doing them: a habit, a tic, a small kindness, a small cruelty.

Date _____

The Record

What isn't written down gets remembered wrong.

“Your memory is a storyteller, not a stenographer. Let's catch it editing.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE From memory, write down something specific that happened about a year ago. Then check it against a real record: messages, photos, a calendar. Note what your memory changed.

IN THE CODEX Search a line you remember from a stream. Was it said the way you remember?
cultcodex.me/search

What I remembered:

What the record says:

What my memory changed, and why it might have:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Running Joke

Repetition is how a group talks about itself.

“Every family, friend group and office has its private scripture. Find yours.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE List the running jokes and repeated phrases in one group you belong to. For each one, write where it started and what it's really saying underneath the laugh.

The joke or phrase → where it started → what it really means:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Margin

| The edge has the best view.

“The Exile isn’t bitter about the edge, darling. She’s grateful for the view.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Remember a time you stood on the outside of a group. Write what you could see from there that the people inside couldn’t.

When I was on the outside:

What I could see from there:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Familiar's Hour

Attention is a form of care.

“You’ve been watching something for years and nobody has thanked you. I’m thanking you.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Name something you’ve paid close attention to for a long time without credit: a show, a craft, a person, a place. Write down what you know about it that almost nobody else does.

What I’ve watched for years:

What I know that almost nobody else does:

☐

Rite complete

Date _____

Gate I Review

| Close the door behind you.

“Read it all back. Something in there surprised you, even if you haven't noticed yet.” – Madame Sulphur

THE REVIEW Re-read Days 1 to 6. Copy out the one sentence that surprised you most, then write what you want to carry into Gate II.

The sentence that surprised me:

What I'm carrying into the Mirror:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

GATE II • DAYS 8-14

THE MIRROR

SELF-KNOWLEDGE

Now we turn the watching around. This week belongs to the Mirror Walker and the Oracle. You'll ask the questions you usually avoid and look for the patterns you keep repeating. It will be uncomfortable. That's how you know it's working.

The Mirror

| Other people can see the parts you can't.

“Ask one person one question and don't defend yourself. That's the whole rite. It's harder than it sounds.”

— Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Ask someone you trust: “What's something I do that I probably don't notice?” Write their answer down word for word. Don't explain or justify anything, on the page or to them.

Who I asked:

What they said, word for word:

What I felt when I heard it:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Price of the Gift

| Every gift has a price.

“Turn to the Field Guide at the back and find your archetype. Read the shadow line twice.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Using your archetype from Day 1, write about one time recently when its gift turned against you. Then try the practice listed for it in the Field Guide.

My archetype's gift:

When it turned against me:

What happened when I tried the practice:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Oracle's Question

| A good question is worth more than an answer.

“Write ten questions quickly. The one you almost don't write is the real one.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Write ten questions about your own life without stopping. Circle the one you're avoiding.

IN THE CODEX Ask the Oracle one question about the archive you've always wondered about. 3 free each month.
cultcodex.me/oracle

Ten questions (circle the one you're avoiding):

01 _____

02 _____

03 _____

04 _____

05 _____

06 _____

07 _____

08 _____

09 _____

10 _____

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Pattern

The same gesture shows up in different eras.

“If it’s happened three times, darling, it’s not bad luck. It’s a pattern.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Find something that has happened in your life at least three times: a kind of argument, a way things end, a role you keep ending up in. Write each time, then what they have in common.

First time:

Second time:

Third time:

What they have in common:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Old Story

| The story you tell about yourself is a spell.

“You’ve said it so often you think it’s the truth. Let’s hear it from a stranger.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Write the three-sentence story you usually tell people about who you are. Then rewrite it as a stranger would, using only facts they could check.

The story I usually tell:

The same story, from a stranger with only the facts:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Masks

| Everyone performs, so know which role you're playing.

“There's no shame in masks. The shame is forgetting you're wearing one.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE List the versions of you: at work, with family, online, alone. For each one, write what it hides. Then mark the one that feels closest to true.

The mask → what it hides:

The one closest to true, and why:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

Gate II Review

| Look once more, then look away.

“Halfway, darling. Most people stop before now. You didn’t.” – Madame Sulphur

THE REVIEW Re-read Days 8 to 13. Write the one thing you learned about yourself that you’d rather not have. Then write one thing you’re quietly proud of.

What I’d rather not have learned:

What I’m quietly proud of:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

GATE III • DAYS 15-21

THE CRUCIBLE

TRANSFORMATION

Everything you gathered is material, and this week you heat it. The Alchemist turns the mess into meaning, and the Trickster checks whether that meaning can take a joke. Break something small. See what you learn.

The Crucible

| Everything is material.

“Bring me your pettiest irritation from this week. We're going to take it apart.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Take one irritation from this week and break it into its ingredients: what it touches in you, what it's afraid of, and what it actually wants.

The irritation:

What it touches:

What it's afraid of:

What it actually wants:

☐

Rite complete

Date _____

The Transmutation

Turn one sentence into a thesis.

“The Alchemist can build a cathedral out of one overheard line. So can you.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Pick one sentence you’ve heard or read: a quote, a lyric, something a friend said. Write half a page arguing something that grows out of it.

IN THE CODEX Browse the quote archive for a line that snags on you. cultcodex.me/quotes

The sentence:

The argument that grows from it:

☐

Rite complete

Date _____

The Trickster's Test

If it can't survive a laugh, it wasn't holding weight.

“Mock yourself lovingly, darling. What's left standing is yours.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Pick one belief you take very seriously. Write the funniest honest critique of it you can. Then decide: did it survive?

The belief:

The funniest honest critique:

Did it survive? What's left?

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Small Disruption

Break one habit on purpose.

“Something small. A different road, a different chair. Watch what wakes up.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Change one small routine today: your route, the order of your morning, where you sit. Write down what you noticed because of it.

What I changed:

What I noticed that I never would have:

☐

Rite complete

Date _____

The Symbol

Choose your sign.

“Every archetype has a glyph. You’re allowed one of your own.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Sketch a personal glyph in the box: simple enough to draw in five seconds. Underneath, write the three things it stands for.

IN THE CODEX Browse the Symbol Encyclopedia for inspiration. cultcodex.me/symbols

SKETCH HERE

It stands for:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Draw

Chance becomes a mirror if you let it.

“The card doesn’t know your future, darling. It knows which question you’re asking.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Hold a question you've been carrying. Draw a card from the Codex deck or any deck, or open a book to a random page. Treat what you get as a writing prompt, not a prophecy. How does it answer you?

IN THE CODEX Draw from the Codex deck. cultcodex.me/draw

My question:

What I drew:

How it answers me:

☐

Rite complete

Date _____

Gate III Review

| Let it cool before you touch it.

“Whatever you made this week is still hot. Look at it, don’t grab it.” – Madame Sulphur

THE REVIEW Re-read Days 15 to 20. Write down what you transformed this week, even if it’s small, and what you broke that needed breaking.

What I transformed:

What I broke that needed breaking:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

GATE IV • DAYS 22-28

THE SIGNAL

VOICE

A signal nobody receives is only noise, darling. This week you say things out loud: predictions, letters, new words. The Prophet speaks first and the Architect builds something that lasts. You'll do both.

The Prophecy

| Say it before it's proven.

“Prophets are only ever understood in hindsight. So let's make some hindsight.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Write three predictions about your own life a year from now. Date them, then fold down the corner of this page. Open it again in a year.

Today's date:

Prediction one:

Prediction two:

Prediction three:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Architect's Frame

| Building structure is a way of caring.

“One messy corner of your life, darling. Just one. Build it a frame.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Pick one messy area: a drawer, an inbox, a weekly chore. Design a simple system for it, sketch it, and put it in place today.

SKETCH HERE

The mess:

The system:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Unsent Letter

Say the true thing, even if only to paper.

“You never have to send it. That’s why you can finally write it.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Write a letter to someone that you will never send. Then underline one sentence from it that you could actually say to them.

Dear _____,

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Transmission

| A signal needs someone to receive it.

“Say one thing out loud to one person. Watch their face.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Share one thing you learned this month with one person, out loud, in your own words. Write down what happened.

IN THE CODEX Optional: post what you learned in the Salon. cultcodex.me/salon

What I shared:

Who I told:

What happened:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Lexicon

| Name a thing and it becomes real.

“There are feelings nobody has named yet. Claim three.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Invent three words for feelings or situations that don't have a word yet. Define each one like a dictionary would, and use it in a sentence.

IN THE CODEX See how the archive names its own inventions. cultcodex.me/lexicon

Word one: definition, and a sentence:

Word two:

Word three:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

Gate IV Review

| Listen for the echo.

“You’ve been broadcasting all week. Now listen for what came back.” – Madame Sulphur

THE REVIEW Re-read Days 22 to 27. Write down what came back to you this week: replies, reactions, a change in how you feel.

What came back:

What I’ll keep saying:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

GATE V • DAYS 29-30

THE SEAL

RETURN

You go back to the threshold as someone slightly different. Two days, one look back, one promise.

The Return

| Go back to the threshold.

“Answer Day 1 again without looking. Then compare. That gap is what this month was.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Without looking at Day 1, answer its questions again. Then compare the two. Retake the quiz too: are you still the same archetype?

IN THE CODEX Retake the archetype quiz. cultcodex.me/archetype-quiz

My archetype now:

Why I'm still here:

What I want now:

What changed between Day 1 and today:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

The Seal

| An initiation is a promise, not a finish line.

“You did it, darling. Now promise me three things and sign the seal.” – Madame Sulphur

THE RITE Write your vow: three practices from this month that you’ll keep doing. Then sign and date the Seal of Initiation on the next page.

I will keep:

I will keep:

I will keep:

☐ Rite complete

Date _____

THIS CERTIFIES THAT

HAS PASSED THROUGH ALL FIVE GATES AS

The _____

and has promised to keep what they found.

Signed

Date

Witnessed, fondly, by Madame Sulphur

The eight archetypes

You'll need this on Day 9. Find yours, then read the one you'd least like to be. That one has something to teach you too.

The Oracle

- GIFT You notice the connections others miss. Where they hear noise, you hear signal.
- SHADOW You see patterns that aren't there, and you live in what things mean instead of what they are.
- PRACTICE Check one pattern you believe in against the actual record.

The Alchemist

- GIFT You turn raw chaos into meaning. Every encounter is material.
- SHADOW People can start to feel like ingredients to you.
- PRACTICE Make one thing purely for pleasure. Extract nothing from it.

The Trickster

- GIFT Disruption is your ritual. What you shake loose teaches people something.
- SHADOW You hide behind the laugh, and you can't stop once you've started.
- PRACTICE Be completely sincere once, on purpose, and don't undercut it.

The Mirror Walker

- GIFT You show other people to themselves just by being there.
- SHADOW You disappear into everyone else and forget your own opinion.
- PRACTICE State one opinion today without softening it.

The eight archetypes, continued

The Prophet

- GIFT You say what's coming before it arrives.
- SHADOW Being right too early turns into bitterness about not being heard.
- PRACTICE Write the prediction down, date it, and let it go.

The Architect

- GIFT You build the systems meaning flows through. Structure is how you care.
- SHADOW Control, and quiet resentment about work nobody sees.
- PRACTICE Leave one thing unorganised on purpose.

The Exile

- GIFT You've always stood at the edge of the circle, and you see clearest from there.
- SHADOW The distance turns into your whole identity.
- PRACTICE Step one foot into a circle you usually watch from outside.

The Familiar

- GIFT You're the witness who stays. You were paying attention when nobody else was.
- SHADOW You make yourself invisible and never let anyone give you credit.
- PRACTICE Let someone thank you. Don't deflect it.

Three spreads for later

For after the thirty days. Draw one card for each position from any deck or cultcodex.me/draw, or skip the cards and simply answer each position in writing. The questions do most of the work.

The Threshold Spread

When you're about to begin something.

1	2	3
What I'm leaving behind	What I'm carrying across	What waits on the other side

The Mirror Spread

When someone has got under your skin.

1	2	3
What they did	What it showed me about me	What I'd do if I weren't afraid

The Signal Spread

When you can't decide whether to speak.

1	2	3
What I want to say	Who needs to hear it	What it costs to stay silent

The archive remembers everything

You spent thirty days keeping a record of yourself. The Codex does the same for every Cult of Psyche transmission: every episode, transcript, running joke and prophecy, all searchable down to the sentence.

FREE

The archetype quiz

cultcodex.me/archetype-quiz

FREE • 3 A MONTH

Ask the Oracle

cultcodex.me/oracle

FREE

Search the archive

cultcodex.me/search

INITIATE+ • $10 / MONTH

100 Oracle questions a month, full transcripts and the Psychenomicon

cultcodex.me/premium

Come and find me. I'll be at the table.
— Madame Sulphur